So the idea for my game was to make a mine, where you would mine and collect gold coins and use that exploit labor laws to increase production. Or just the first part, the second is implied. In all seriousness, I would want a better background and “pickaxe” asset, even animation would be cool for the pickaxe to swing when clicking.

Now as the game is now, I kind of wanted to lean into the “shitty, my first game, flash game on CMG, aesthetic” partly because it is my shitty first game, but also because it’s kind of funny. So the final screen, if you can get there, is handdrawn by mwah. Other than that I grabbed a stock image straight from google images and cleanpng for the background and main clicker button.
